"L.M.S." ...

Echoes of your school, Brother Weaver

DEDICATION

We present the echoes of your school as a thank-you note for all you have done for us. You have given of yourself—your convictions, personality, time, talents, energy—for the welfare of every student on campus. You always saw our side of the story and then gave advice that made us strive to be our best. You knew the Word and gave it to us in your chapel messages and classes. As you walked with Christ in your daily life, we were challenged to live closer to Him. May God's richest blessings be on you, Brother Amos Weaver, for your service and may He guide you into even greater service as you leave the school you have so greatly influenced.

This is your school . . .

Friends, Parents, Students, Teachers . . .

On you, the academic, social and spiritual development of this school is dependent for real success. The heart of this school, the students, needs your interest. You are important in the life of L.M.S.

Friends . . .

You were the ones we knew were interested in us. The fact that you subscribed to the Mill Stream or purchased this Laurel Wreath shows your interest.

Parents . . .

You deserve not less than the most credit for the success of this year. Your presence at Parents' Day, Chorus programs, and graduation gave us a deep sense of loyalty and love for you.

Students . . .

The opportunity to express yourself in a topic, in prayer circle, in a committee, or even on the ball field was yours this year at L.M.S. You, the student, made the school publication drives successful, recreation periods enjoyable, and the chapel experiences meaningful.

Teachers . . .

Those quizzes and tests you prepared so carefully were often accepted most ungratefully. Nevertheless, we were glad to have you as a part of our lives. Your guidance and concern will long be remembered by us.

Academic

Just Thinking

I could flop, but that theme is due tomorrow and I must get it done . . . What I am preparing for . . . Really, I never thought too much about it—finish school, then what? . . . I don't believe I could bear sitting through any more classes after grad . . . I don't want to work in a factory . . . I enjoy algebra class, but to teach math . . . maybe VS will be the answer . . . preparation for future service? . . . I really feel L.M.S. has done a lot in widening my field of knowledge . . . Is that the bell already? . . . Thinking didn't get me too far in writing this theme . . . better get to work. . . .

Echoes

The library is a central part of L.M.S.'s academic life. Jerry Martin jots down a few research notes for English IV.

Dean—
Noah G. Good

You've met them before—either in past yearbooks or right here on campus. Brother Weaver is interested in people and gardening and teaches Bible students. Brother Good enjoys languages and has a wide range of knowledge. Brother Keener specializes in driving or teaching others how to drive. Brother Stoner, often seen in the business office, also teaches commercial students. They are constantly at work, yet they seem to always have time to talk or listen to us.

These men have given of themselves—their time and talents—for us and the school.

Meet the ones who make the academic life of L.M.S. possible. Keep in mind that they are more than professors; they are persons who have a real part in helping to mold the lives and convictions of us as students. Some seem like a parent, some like a brother or sister, and others like a trustworthy friend to us. Whether in the classroom, on campus, or in their homes, these teachers are concerned about and working for us. For this we thank them.

The academic life of an individual is very important. The saying, "the more you put into it, the more you get out of it," is really true in this area of life. Here at L.M.S. there are five different curriculums which students enroll in. No matter which curriculum a student is in, he is required to take English, history, Bible, health, plus some science, math, and music.

The College Preparatory, sometimes called academic curriculum, probably has the most difficult subjects. Besides extra math and science, he plunges into two foreign languages!

Typing, bookkeeping, shorthand—all these subjects are in the Commercial curriculum. The commercial student not only learns to do things quickly, but also accurately. He may get the chance to work in the business office here at school a few times. He is preparing for office work.

More students graduate with the General diploma than with any other type. This is not because the General curriculum is easy, but because the student can choose a larger variety of subjects. Many who receive the General diploma further their training after high school.

The aroma from the kitchen, the sound of a typewriter, the rattle of wastecans . . . all this is a part of the life of L.M.S. Even though we seldom come in contact with our employees, we all benefit from their diligent work. Whether in the office, behind a boiling pot, or using a broom, these few people are happily working to keep us happy.

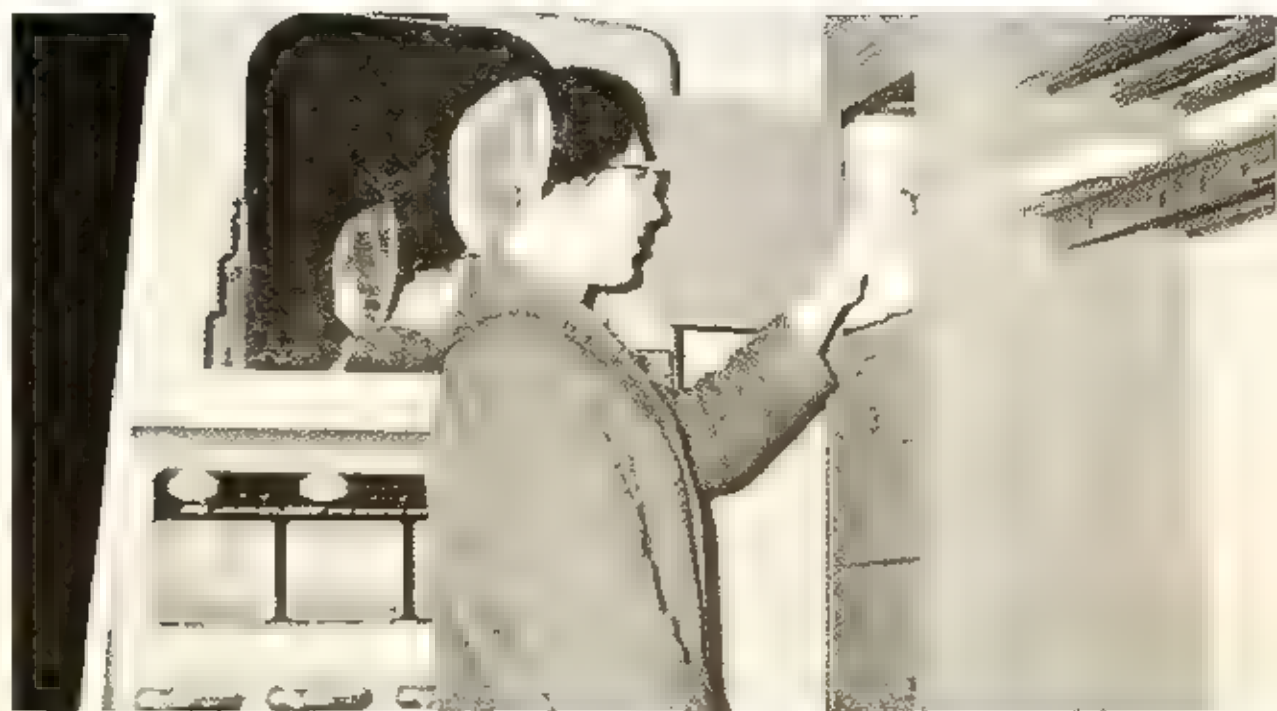

Friendship

Friendships

Have you ever tried to live the life of a hermit, to have no friends and care less about having them? Friends are one of the greatest blessings anyone can have. You may have close, dependable friends, casual friends, or even false friends. A real friendship requires a mutual sharing—sharing of ideals, convictions, feelings, likes and dislikes. In most friends there is an unmistakable quality that another appreciates and most likely there is some quality that another does not appreciate. A friendship will begin to grow once those involved are willing to give of themselves unreservedly.

Echoes

Every day students frequent the "Rec" hall for fun and fellowship or to exchange books. Here Carolyn Oberholtzer, Willie Longenecker and Luke Mosemann enter, and Carolyn reloads with books

New schedules are given a critical once-over on registration day

Mary Ann Beiler and Julia Shreiner unpack for another year of school.

Registration Day

It was a new experience—registration day at L.M.S. Besides going through all the formal routine of registering, there were many people, buildings, and books to become acquainted with. Discovering a classmate from Arizona, meeting one's roommate, or chatting with a teacher made us gradually become relaxed and full of anticipation for a great year. With mingled feelings we began our school days at L.M.S. together.

After the finished task, Mary Ann and Julia relax and make new resolutions.

Seniors

Student Forum, school publications, and guiding a class require the seniors' leadership abilities. There were decisions that had to be made—class motto, Christmas project, class gift, and many more. Chills traveled our spines as we listened to "Macbeth," and many pondered the P.O.D. question of "one and only one." Highlighting our senior year were the trip to Washington, our Thanksgiving program, skating, Easter caroling, and finally graduation. Preparing a topic for a Student Religious program or participating in class discussions helped us to express our ideas and convictions.

Indian River, New York City, Long's Park

Miss Liberty welcomes L.M.S. ers with outstretched arm.

The vast, calm sea surrounds the guys aboard Katherine R., one of the three boats

In May we drew summer plans to capture fellowship, fun, excitement, and learning. The senior fellows ventured to Indian River Inlet for deep sea fishing. Struck by awe, the bus load of American history seniors moved into New York City. Friendships and fun buzzed at the senior warm-up. Then school resumed, and in November we escaped for a wonderful senior trip.

Senior fellows capture excitement by fishing the sea.

There was lots of fun at evening banquet at the Hotel Continental.

Lincoln Memorial—a high light of senior trip.

"Friendship" is the key word of freshman memories. L.M.S. gave us a brand-new horizon. Our enthusiasm was echoed from the ball field at the freshman-sophomore game.

In Retrospect . . .

Now we knew L.M.S., but new opportunities awaited us. Failure was mixed with achievement, fun with seriousness as we pressed forward. The "Mill Stream" outing tug-of-war is a favorite memory.

The Junior-Senior banquet highlights the junior reflections. Plunging into new experiences we grew and prepared for senior year. They called us "jolly juniors."

September, four years ago, found seventy-four eager freshmen standing at the threshold of a new experience—that of becoming a part of L.M.S. As the months sped by we became better acquainted with our teachers, our classmates, and ourselves.

Before we realized it, we were sophomores. We now numbered ninety. Still we were striving to learn, to think for ourselves, and to contribute our best to school life.

The following year we enrolled as one hundred and thirteen jolly juniors. Life was wonderful. We studied—yes, but we also spent many happy times together doing other things. Who could forget the fall social, Christmas caroling, or the Junior-Senior banquet?

When the trees again turned to gold, red, and amber, and school bells began to ring, we returned to L.M.S. as seniors, perhaps a bit more serious about life than we had ever been before. We studied long and hard, drinking in bits of knowledge each day as we sat in the same familiar classrooms. The dream of spending our high school days at L.M.S. was almost fulfilled.

How time has flown! We look into the past with mixed emotions. Has the time already come when we must leave these Christian teachers who have helped us to know God better through books and the Book, who have helped us to develop our talents to better serve Christ and the church?

Must we leave these dear classmates with whom we have shared the problems and the joys of becoming men and women?

Must we leave this beautiful campus which we have learned to appreciate so much—the Mill Stream which has shared many a student's highest thoughts and aspirations, the ball field, the majestic trees and velvety lawns?

Must we leave the classrooms which have echoed with students hurrying to and from classes, with laughter and song when hearts have felt gay, and with voices of teachers and students discussing the daily lessons?

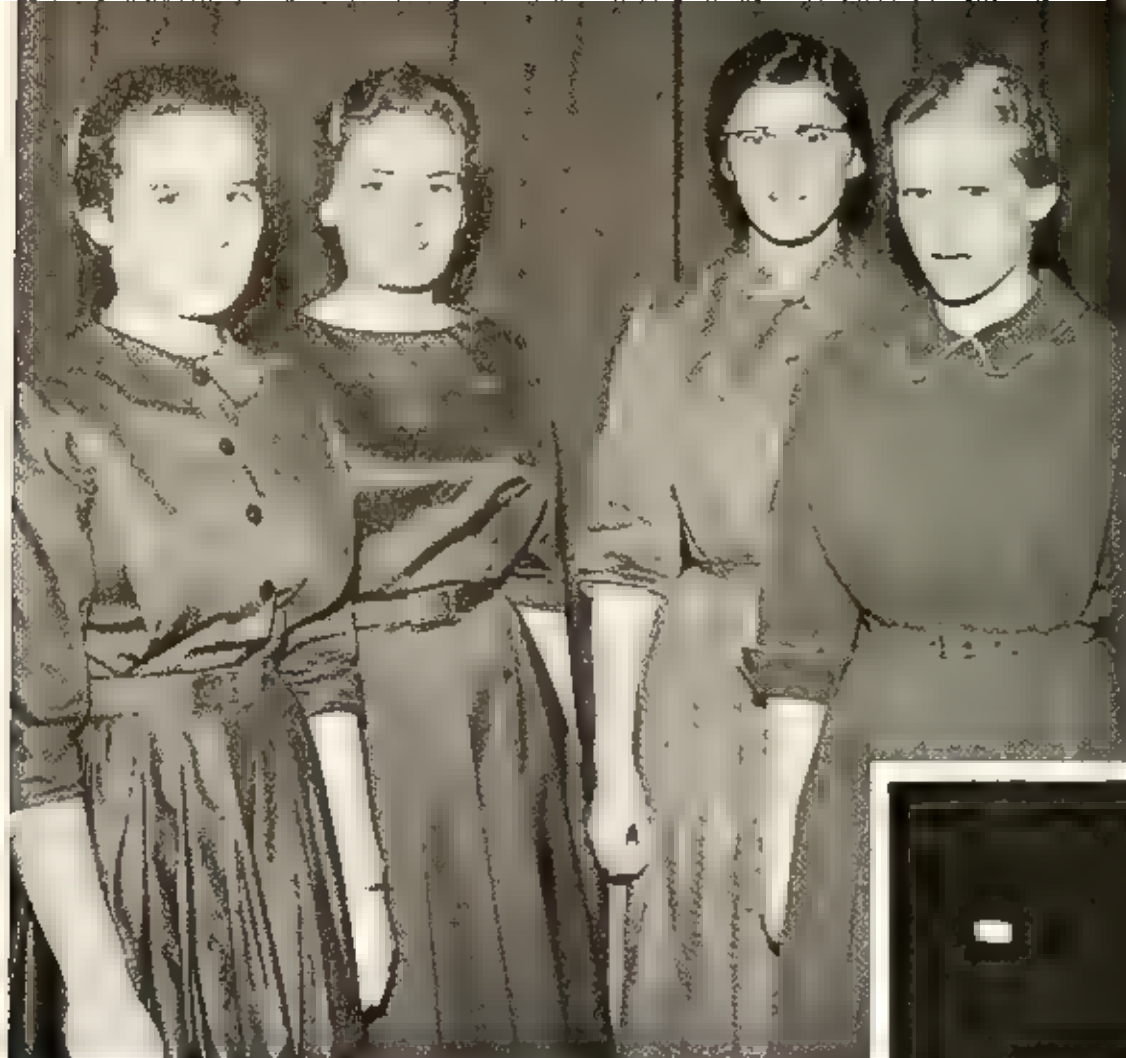

Truly we have become a part of L.M.S. As we leave we carry with us treasured memories of the golden hours spent at L.M.S.

Because our parents and our church have prepared us for service, life challenges us with even greater opportunities to use our hands in His harvest.

—Rachel Gehman.

Then a-w-i-s-h and we are seniors. "Mil. Stream" program, Washington, D.C., Thanksgiving presentation "Our Hands for Thy Harvest," name cards, "chem" tests, "Around the World" with slides, pictures, yearbook sales, and finally like a dark dream we handle our diplomas, then say "Goodby and Good Luck."

Ladies' Dorm Quartet: Doris Stoltzfus, Arlene Beiler, Helena Bade, Elaine Longenecker

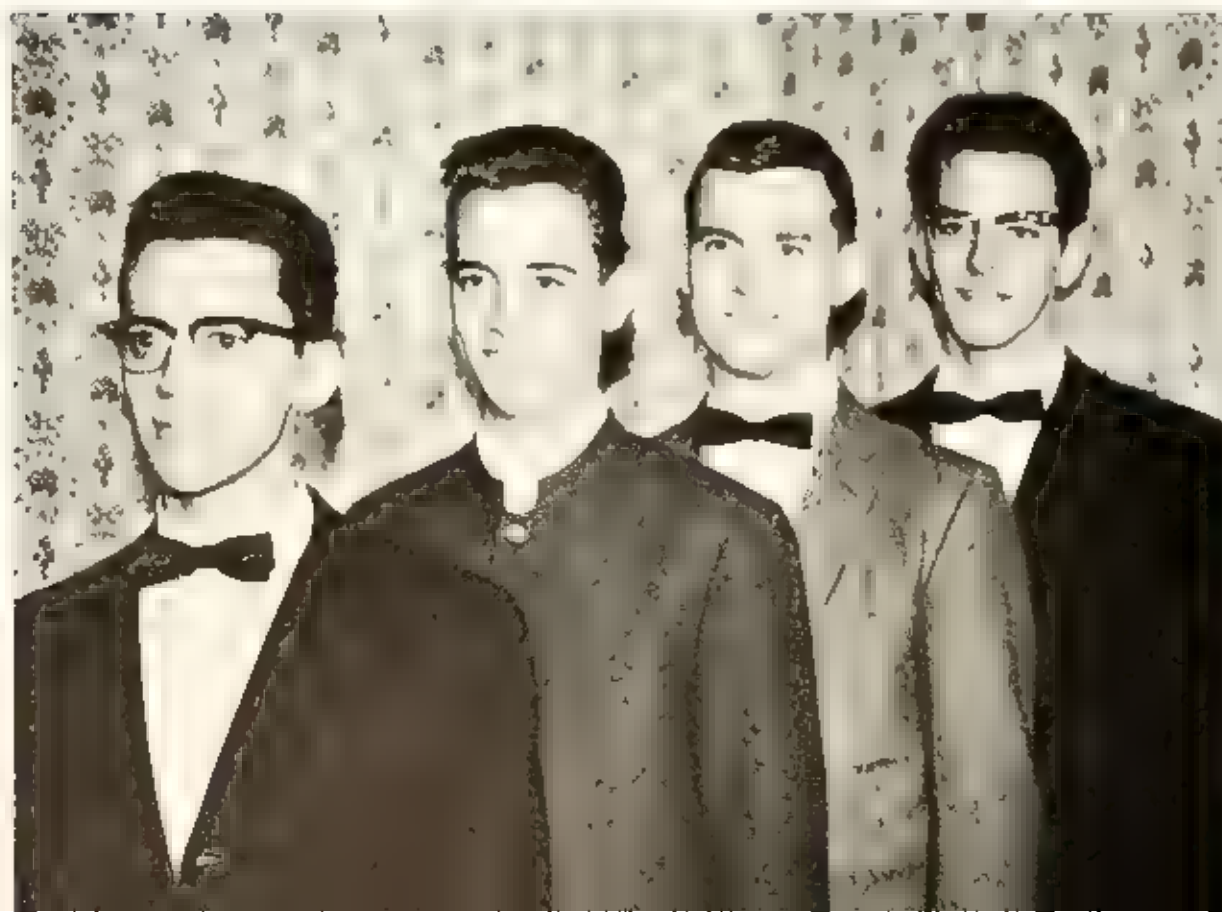

Ladies' day quartet—Anna Ranck, Lois Lelever, ElsiAnne Hess and Norma Jean Kreider

At L.M.S. singing is a specialty. This year's top-notch quartets accented claims of superiority.

Enthusiasm scored high and the applause resounded at performances. Much time is spent sharpening difficult numbers. We shared their singing joy in chapel, at socials, and in prayer circles.

Senior Quartets

Men's Quartet: John Stoltzfus, George Stoltzfus, James Clymer, Stanley Benner.

Making a run-down on the schedules are junior advisers Charles Longenecker, Elizabeth Nolt, and Arnold Moshier.

Making new friendships, developing old ones, we began our junior year. Confidently we elected the four we felt could do the best job in leading our class. Christmas caroling, homeroom programs, and presenting Dickens' "Christmas Carol" to the student body were some of the high lights of this year. We were all confronted with American history dates and eagerly read the "Tale of Two Cities" in English class. For the junior, this was a year of golden opportunities!

Sophomores

Eagerly we began a new school year as sophomores. Working with our advisers and teachers, we learned to know them as persons who were interested in us. The experiences in biology lab and those world history lectures are unforgettable. We all enjoyed the day we entertained our parents with a program. Giving to the children at the Millersville Home for our Christmas project proved to be very worth while, especially after our visit there. With this year as a stepping stone, we look forward to our last years at L.M.S.

Musing over activities schedule, freshman adviser, J. Clarence Garber, Larry Wenger, and Martha Mosemann say "Good job."

Gradually we each found our place in the class of '66. Some were leaders, but we all had talents which we used in one way or another. Grasping for words for an English theme or struggling with an algebra problem was part of a freshman's studies. L.M.S. is a school of many doors which challenge us to new explorations. With the experiences of this year, we face the next three with a determination to make each one count!

Activity

Everyone's Delight

Bells are ringing. Hearts are singing. To the onlooker, the pond is crowded with flashing colors—scarves, socks, skirts. It looks like a conglomeration of people wasting time, but to the skater it is a time of real recreation. A time when all pride is smashed (especially after a fall), self and worries are forgotten, cliques are broken apart, and friendships expand! The pond is filled with learners, graceful skaters, and those displaying the latest trick. The fresh cool air makes cold toes and red noses, but as in other activities, the skater returns to his studies with a warm heart.

Echoes

A vital part of our activities unfolds on the basketball court. Blair Seitz "sinks" a foul shot in the Junior-Senior game.

As Brother Shank hands out the Mill Stream in senior home-room, the eyes of the editors follow each paper dreamily as it leaves his hand. They know that paper by heart—could recite it almost from memory—from the headlines on the front page to the "Student of the Month" on the back. This is the reward of a month of assigning news articles to people and checking to see that they meet deadlines, of trying to fit articles into place so that they "balance," and hoping that Mr. M. won't mind too much that his article had to be cut down or even omitted.

This year the Mill Stream has printed, besides the regular news articles, a few new features. Sand-bar is a column which answers questions, submitted by students, on our church doctrines and their practical applications. Forum Fount, Club Cargo, and Laurel Wreath Inlet give monthly reports on Student Forum, the progress of different school clubs, and our yearbook, respectively. Whirlpool presents the views of L.M.S. students on subjects of interest to everyone.

Editing the school newspaper is something the Mill Stream staff will always remember.

Do you enjoy the singing from the balcony before chapel? How about those Thursday 2:10 ball games? Are you supporting your school?

Student Forum is a body of twenty-four students plus one faculty adviser, Brother Hershey, who are helping to push the school program by giving suggestions for campus improvement, better school spirit, recreational and spiritual developments, and many other things.

There are three committees within the forum that work on different areas of school life—the athletic, spiritual life, and executive committees. With every student behind his representative, Student Forum will continue to serve us.

Laurel Wreath

The thrill of completing the 1963 "Laurel Wreath," the joy in presenting it to you, the satisfaction of a job well done and a new appreciation for all other yearbooks goes with the burning of midnight oil and sacrificing time and grades. After a summer of browsing through yearbooks and dreaming, we came back anticipating our first assignment, followed by many others.

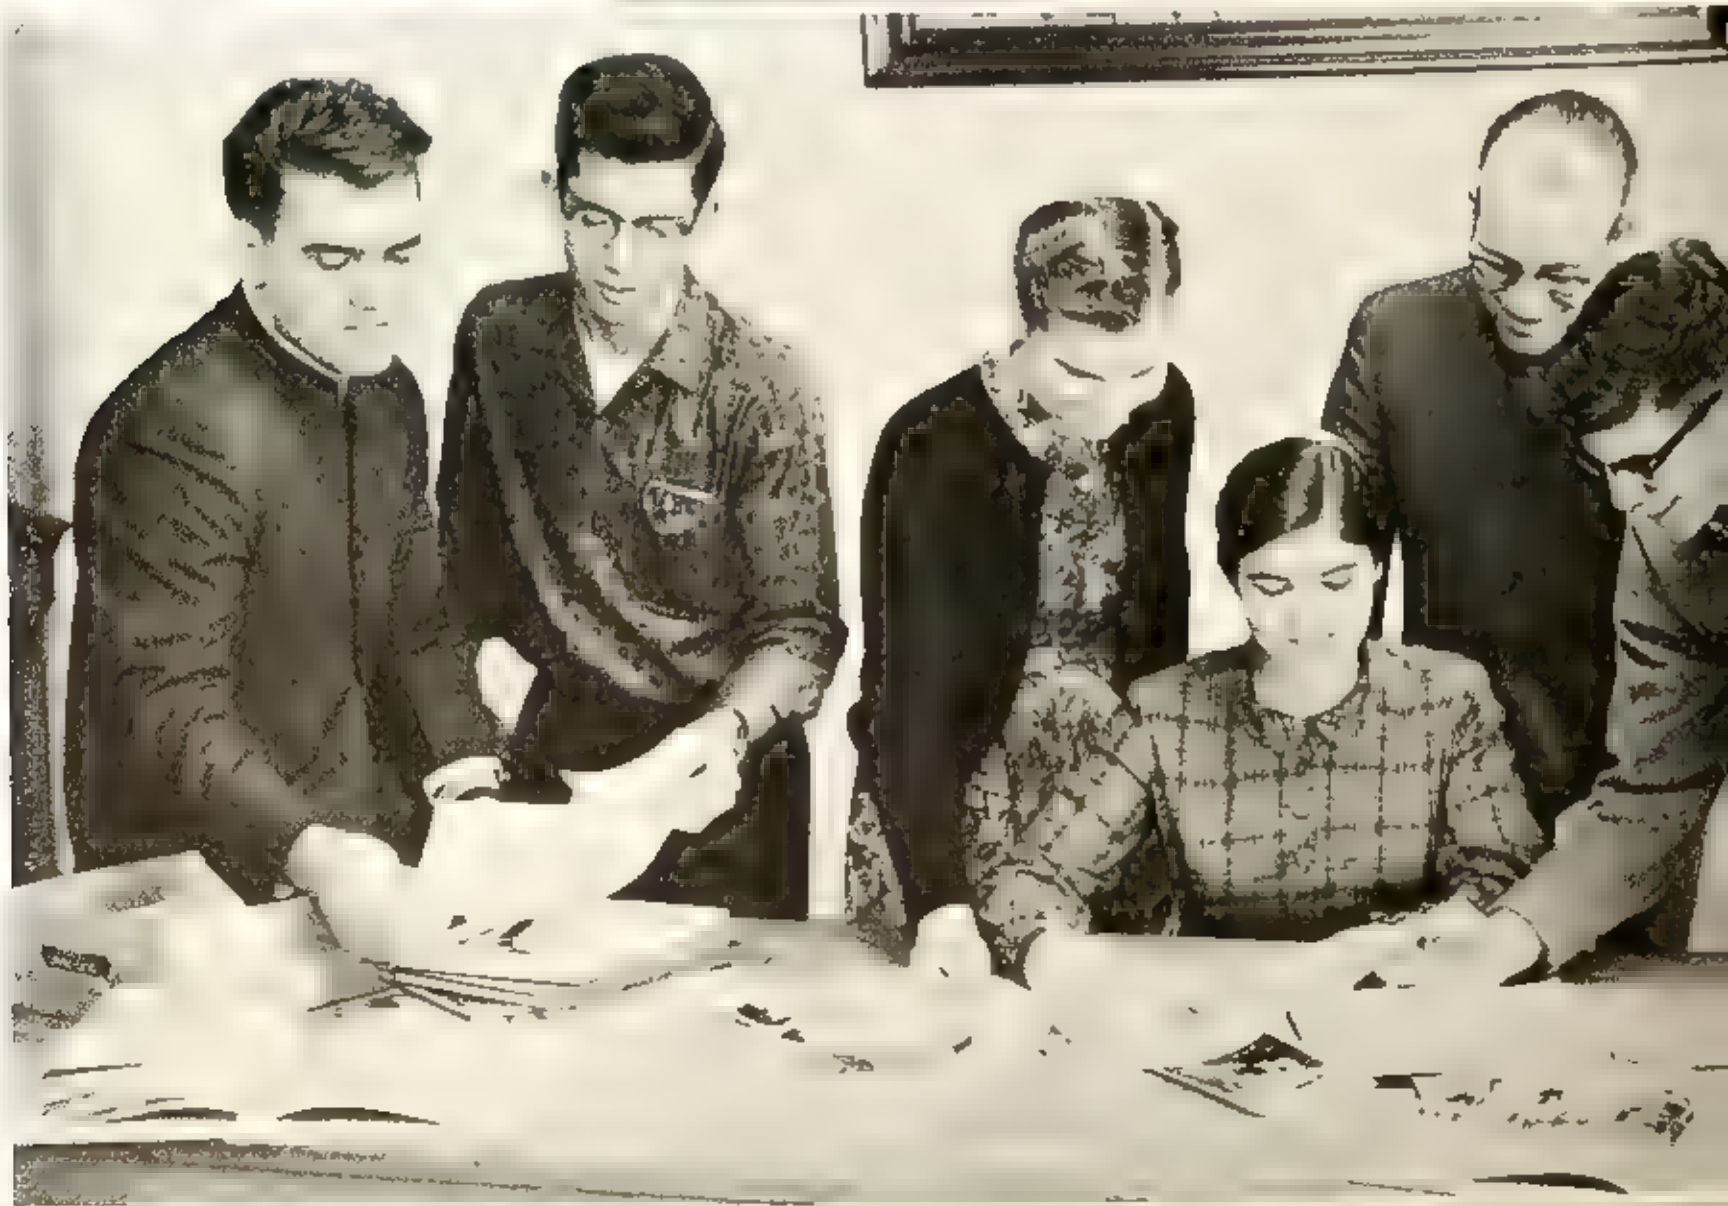

"Brainstorming" during senior homeroom one day gave us valuable suggestions and an idea what the seniors wanted in their yearbook. Our work was highlighted by our trip to the Publishing House in Scottsdale and entertaining Peel's studio on campus two afternoons.

There were times when we felt we were running against a stone wall, but with every shadow came a rebounding ray of sunlight that led us on in completing the echoing book of '63.

'H ME THY WAY, O LORD

Brother Moshier helps the soprano section catch a difficult part in practice session.

Choruses

Arnold Moshier, director

It was a dreary afternoon—everything seemed to be going wrong. I wanted to be alone, to forget about that test, to run away from the rush of deadlines, simply to be left alone to think. Instead, facing reality, I went along with the crowd to chorus practice.

“Was that ever great!” “I sure hope we sing that at our spring program!” “I feel like a different person!” On and on the comments went till I had actually forgotten about my many trivial worries.

Yes, those many chorus experiences of working together, of anticipating a coming program, of expressing our feelings through the words of another, were times of real blessing which won't easily be forgotten by the chorus member.

The big feature is here—senior chorus comes onto stage for Christmas performance.

Practice Group II and III

Every day Brother Moshier directed one of the four sections of senior chorus. We always looked forward to Tuesday after school when the entire group of 217 practiced for fifteen or twenty minutes. Beginning each practice period with prayer made us more conscious of the words we sang and drew us closer to our Creator.

Chef's Club

If while wandering by the Home Economics building on a Friday afternoon your thoughts are disrupted by excited voices and loud exclamations, don't be frightened; it's no doubt the twenty-five fellows in Chef's Club.

This club, in its first year, is under the direction of the very capable Home Economics instructor, Miss Nolt. Some of the things the fellows have done this year are making fudge, pizza, various pies, sandwiches, and eggs with toast (frontier style). Table etiquette, color combination selections, and general manners are among other things discussed. Chef's Club has been a very enjoyable and enlightening experience for all those involved

Monday morning nine students and three faculty members meet in Room F to learn how to take better and more effective pictures. Besides studying the mechanics of complex cameras, one becomes acquainted with such techniques as developing and printing, the art of panning, and other photographic tricks.

Slides loaned from the Kodak Company are scheduled to be shown once a month. Some class periods are spent in discussing the shots taken the week before. It is time well spent and quite enjoyable.

Bird Study

Can you identify birds when you see or hear them? Probably not as well as you could after participating in Bird Study Class. The chance to relax in nature, to forget school pressures, to see God's interest in even that small sparrow—these are only a few of the rewards of taking Bird Study.

Not all the time is spent outside. One studies his textbook to be able to identify even the rarest bird. This class not only broadens one's knowledge of birds, but also helps him to appreciate them more.

Nursing Club Officers, Nancy Umble, Ferne Yoder, Joan Edwards, and Judy Buckwalter, sort through new club materials with Beverly Schreiner, adviser.

Nursing Club

The Nurse's Club is open to all girls who are interested in nursing. Because of the number of members, the club was divided into two groups, each choosing their own set of officers. The purpose of the Nurse's Club is to help answer the following questions, plus many more:

—What is a nurse?

—Is nursing for me?

—Do I want to be a Registered or a Practical Nurse?

—What high school subjects should I pursue?

—When and where should I take my training?

—Will I be able to serve Christ as a nurse?
—Joan Edwards.

First Aid

Stretchers, splints, bandage strips, salves—this is all a part of First Aid. The nine to-be-first-aiders who studied and practiced this year will be those who will experience the joy and satisfaction of lessening pain. Perhaps they can save a life. Poisoned? Someone drowning? A bad cut? Broken bone? The first-aiders need not panic. He knows what to do until the doctor comes. Thinking of nursing? Housekeeping? Foreign or home service? First aid training will be a great asset to confidence in any emergency.

Music Appreciation

One of the main purposes of this class is to develop good listening habits as well as to become acquainted with the best in music and enjoy listening to it. This is a time when music-lovers can relax and listen to good music.

Stylus Club gives its members an insight into three types of writing: articles, poems, and stories. It emphasizes creativity and true self-expression. Searching for ideas has helped to make these nine writers more aware of their surroundings. Their ultimate goal is to be able to produce a quality of work acceptable for publication.

CYWS

A new feature of the Mill Stream this year was the launching of an organization to stimulate Christian writing and literature. It is called the Christian Youth Writers' Stimulus (CYWS). Each month L.M.S. students are urged to write an essay, article, or story on a given theme. The submitted manuscripts are judged and the best ones are awarded with a certificate of achievement and membership to CYWS. A correspondent also aids in editing and marketing.

Devotional

Just for Today

Father, grant me Thy strength to endure every trial and temptation. May you go before me and lead me to one soul who is in need. Lord, place the words in my mouth for every contact of the day. In these minutes before me, help me to use them as precious diamonds which cannot be wasted. As I study, may I concentrate, and give me a desire to learn. As I participate in the activities of the day, make me always conscious of your presence. May you be a shining light in me. Fill my life to overflowing with Thy love. Free my mind of all wrong attitudes and worries and open my eyes to the needs around me.

Student Living

Anticipating a class social that evening made the day pass swiftly. Then in the hour or two of fun, enjoyment, and spiritual refreshment, we became better acquainted with our classmates away from the classroom.

Sharing fun, interests, ideas, and the small meaningful happenings at L.M.S. injected into us enthusiasm needed to keep our school life in balance.

There were times through sharing problems and concerns that many of us were not only drawn closer to each other, but also to the Lord.

Our vibrant student life imprints on the character of L.M.S. a glowing spark.

Dorm Living

A stranger at L.M.S. would wonder at the unusual activity on campus at the close of school each Friday. The usual afterschool traffic is stilled by cars with gaping trunks into which fellows are transferring an assortment of luggage from the porch of the red-brick building next to the chapel. Adding to the confusion are calls of "Good-by 'til Monday," and "Have a nice weekend." Dormitory students live five days a week as a large family with L.M.S. as home.

Providing living quarters for the one hundred and forty students who are unable to commute to school daily, supplying the spiritual necessities of daily living, and substituting wholesome social activities for the weekday functions of home congregations are the three major functions of the dormitory.

Still in the early stages of development are the dorm's literary societies organized for the purpose of providing programs and social events for students. With "Striving Onward, Capturing Skills" as their motto, Socratarians endeavor to uphold Socrates' reputation of thoughtfulness, wisdom, and justice. Herculeans praise strength and brilliance as they work with the motto, "Forward, Striving for Perfection."

Most dorm students will agree that their dorm experiences are helping them form more independent, mature personalities as they live in fellowship with one another and with God.

Class Song

Donald Kraybill

Janet Erb

1. Mas-ter Thy ser-vants we would be, White is Thy har vest we can see.
2. Now as the world be-fore us lies, Will-ing for Thee would Thy ser - vants rise.

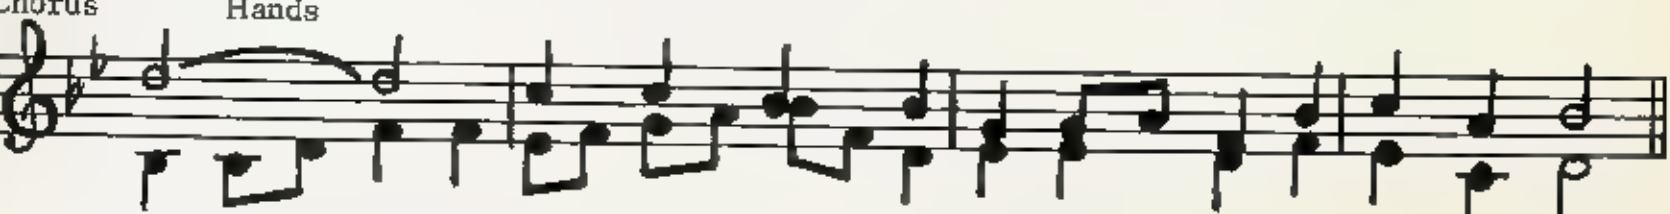

Time and tal-ents we be - stow, Pur pose u - ni - ted and hearts a glow.
Now our hands to Thee we give, So that oth - ers in Thee might live.

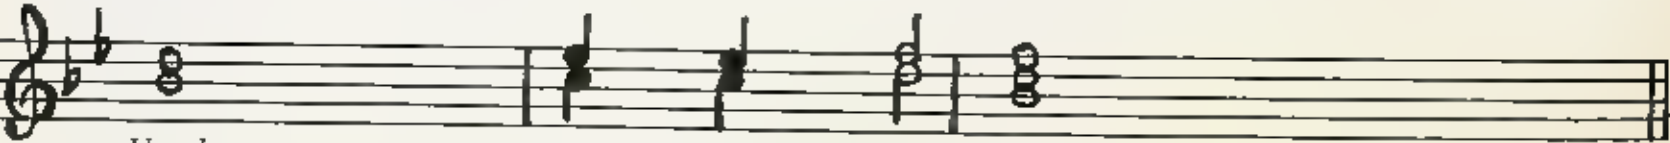

Make them use-ful, now we pray, In Thine on ly way.
Use us Lord, O, now we pray; Mold us in Thy way.

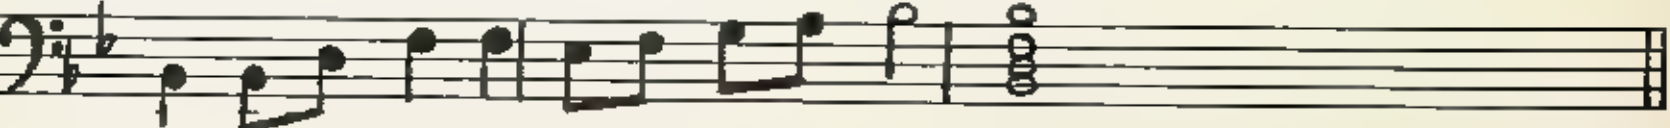

Chorus

Hands for Thy har vest for Thy har vest, Lord, we of - fer all to Thee.

Hands
Hands for Thy har - vest, For Thy har - vest.

Our Hands for Thy Harvest

Lord, to be yielded and eager to serve,
To be humble and active, we pray.
As clay in Thy fingers shaped unto Thy cause,
May we give Thee our hands to obey.

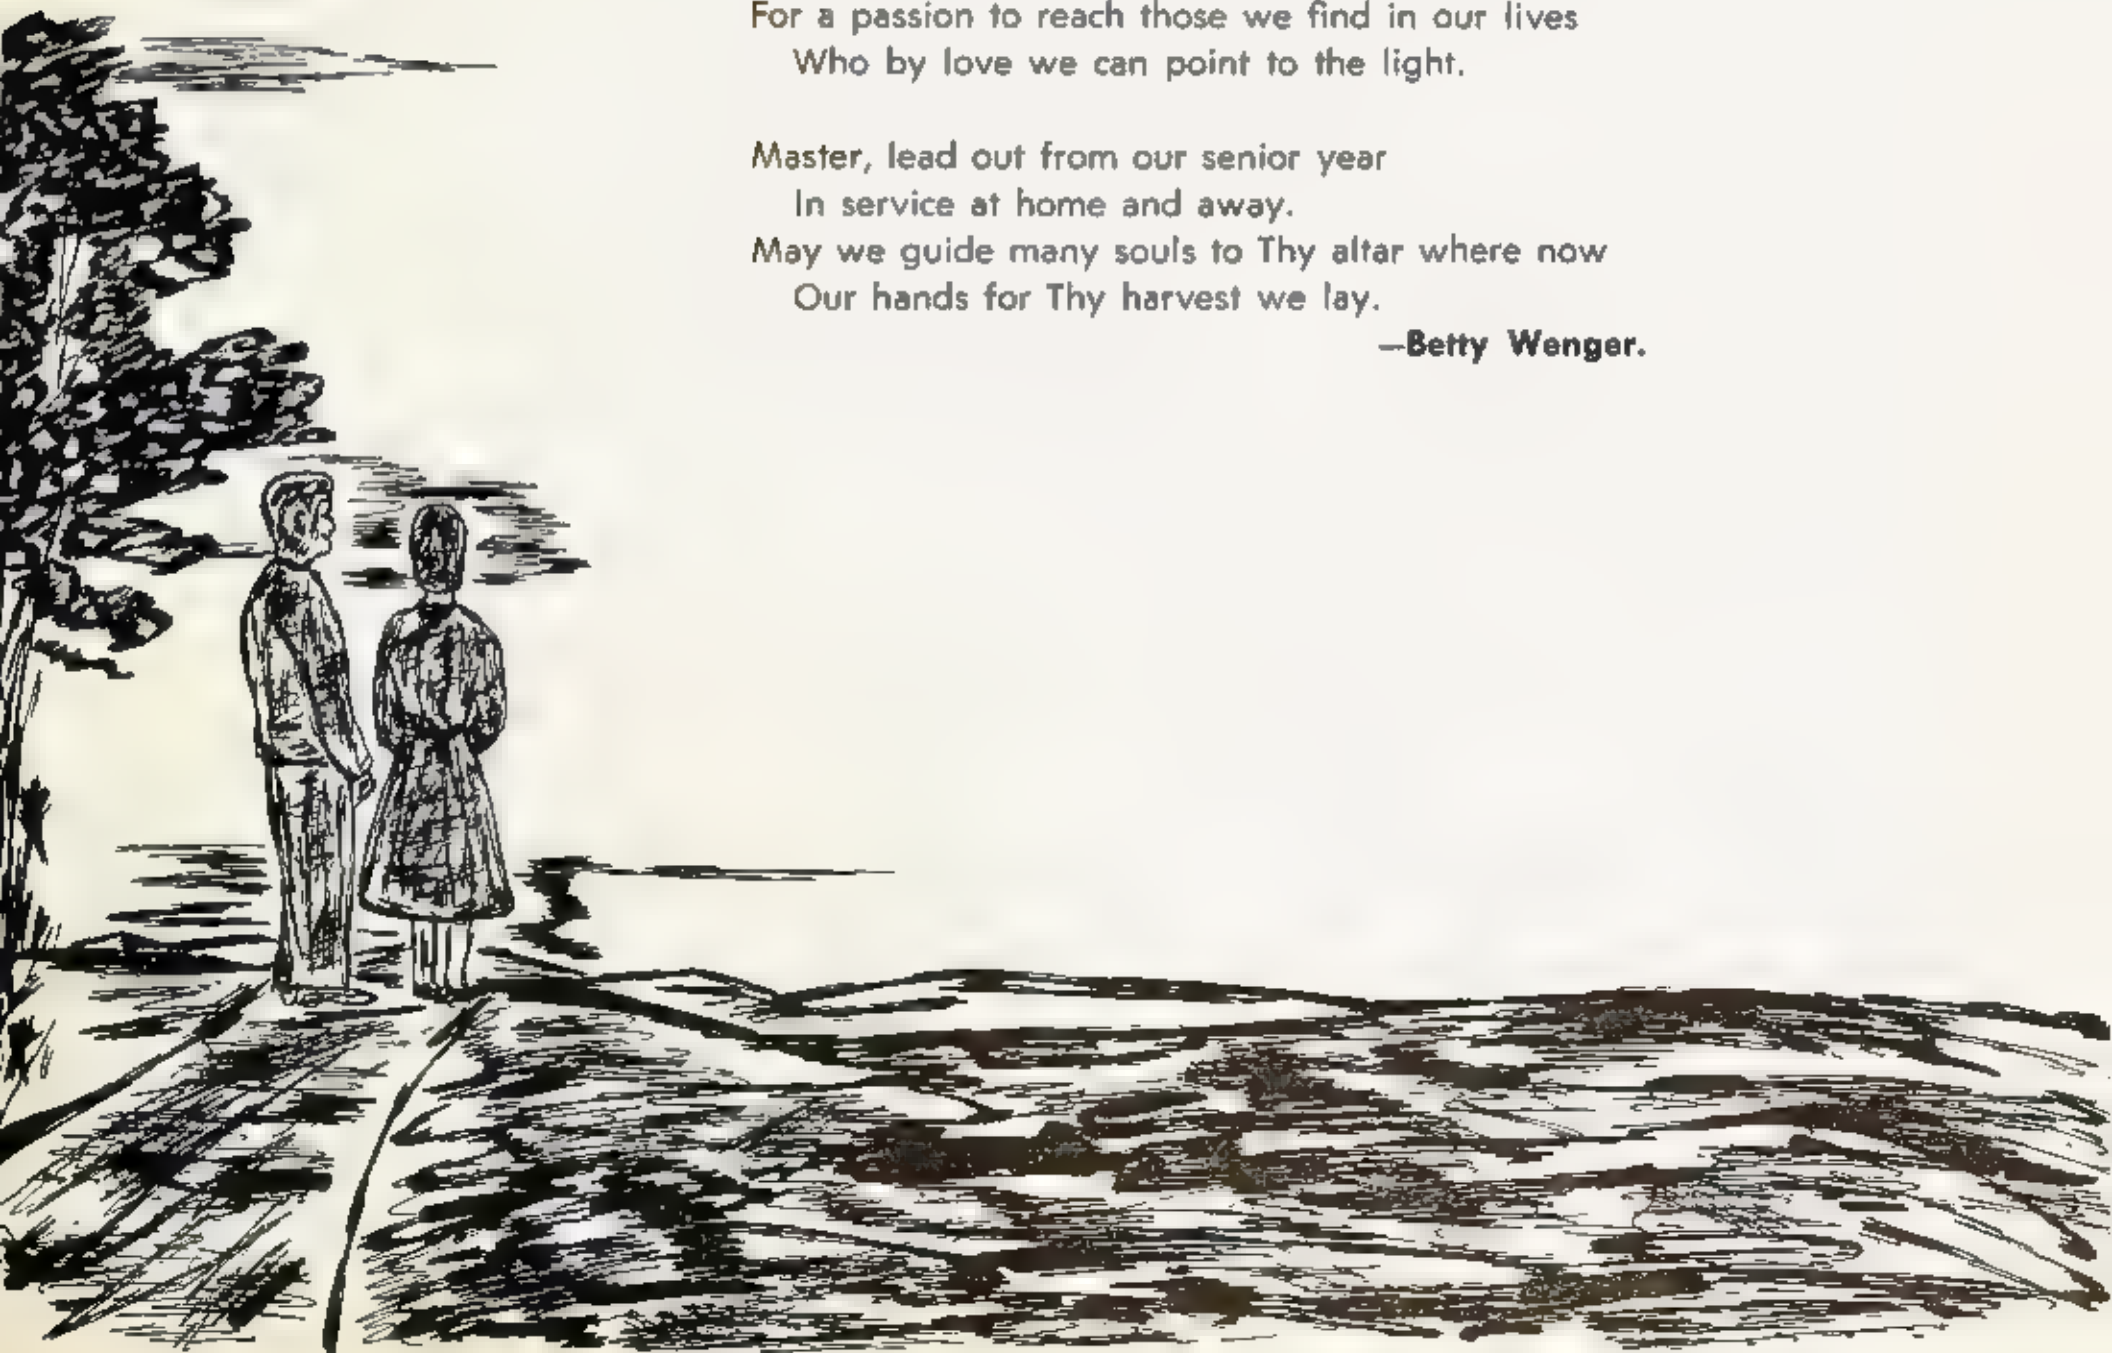

Father, in prayer, communing with Thee,
May we serve in Thy vast harvest field.
Teach us to pray from concern-burdened hearts;
To believe in Thy power for the yield.

O God, to be selfless and ready to give
Of our gold, of our selves, of our time.
May we stretch forth our hands and give Thee our all
To help in Thy harvest divine.

We ask for awareness to sense the deep need
Of the harvest untouched and white,
For a passion to reach those we find in our lives
Who by love we can point to the light.

Master, lead out from our senior year
In service at home and away.
May we guide many souls to Thy altar where now
Our hands for Thy harvest we lay.

—Betty Wenger.

In Gratitude . . .

With deep feeling we say "Thank you" to Peel's Studio, the Mennonite Publishing House, Scottdale, Pa., our advisers, Brother Shank and Brother Eby, the student salesmen, student photographers, student artists, Phoebe Erb and Janet Witmer, and the twelve seniors who compiled the senior descriptions. We say thank you for making this 1963 yearbook a successful reality. Lithographed in U.S.A.
